113 With F.M.L.

You nor I made this world, but we live in it.

It is quite small.

And the smaller it becomes, the larger the elemental forces loom and the less comprehensible it all appears.

I don't fathom it too well. And few differ. A tide wells in us, as it rolls to the shore. And we, none, are quite sure why.

All I know is the way it starts . . .with momentum and a heart beat and an open mind even when it barely sees.

Events hammer at this sensible and sensitive tool until it closes part way in self-defense if not in atrophy.

I listen to others, but fail to hear until things happen. And so with you.

And the elemental rises, lapsing forth and away, courage if you will, a place to yourself. Others fend and feint, just like you.

Little separates selfishness and selflessness. Each opposite serves a need within. Who has not seen denial become a fetish and self-interest turn another way?

I would, for a moment, like to see things as they are and hope to recognize them again. A broad span runs them together, indiscernible; things are not quite the same, ever.

Our disciplines and our abandon gather, margin enough between for the future to stave off implosion.

I live today for tomorrow and the day after. But I live a little more today because tomorrow is somehow a little harder. And so with you.

This world requires more than one look, indeed, some new glimpse each day if it would seem worthwhile. And it is, if only to sense the momentum of life, to acknowledge a sight, a sound or someone.

Alive. The world is. I take it as it comes, large to small, vague to familiar, static to life. And so with you.

City Delays Decision On Gas Hike Request

Request for a rate increase by Lone Star Gas Co. was again tabled Tuesday evening at a regular city council meeting as councilmen turned over the proposed ordinance to City Atty Ed Magre for study.

The council met Monday in a special called session to discuss the request, and Mayor Gene Blake opened Tuesday's session for more discussion.

Councilman Bob Clark asked E. L. Edwards, Lone Star Gas Co. representative, about a section in the ordinance that apparently would allow the company to raise or lower rates in the future without council action. A similar section was deleted from the previous ordinance passed several years ago at the city's request.

In other business, council designated a new street in the Tomerlin Addition as Newhouse Avenue.

Mayor Gene Blake also suggested that City Water Supt. Alvin Hefft purchase spare sewer lift pumps to be kept in reserve in case of failure of present pumps.

Council also heard the second reading of revised ordinances on building code, housing code, electrical code, and fire prevention code.

Present at the 45-minute meeting were Mayor Blake, and councilmen Starrett Hickman, Bob Clark, Lawrence Zotz, Lincoln Mondrik, and Lester Turner.

Republicans Hold County Convention

Milam County Republicans held the party's county convention Saturday evening, and during the hour and a half session named delegates and alternates to attend the GOP State Convention next month and passed five resolutions.

One of the resolutions was a strong pledge of support and an endorsement of President Nixon's Vietnam policy, including his resumption of bombing and blockade and mining of North Vietnam harbors.

GOP County Chairman J. Estel Johnston was elected permanent chairman of the convention. Mrs. Jack Tumlinson was named secretary, and H. P. (Pete) Tumlinson was named sergeant at arms.

The meeting filled the Milam County Party's quota of four delegates and four alternates to the Republican State Convention, which will be held on June 13 in Galveston.

Delegates chosen were James E. Luckey and Mrs. James E. Luckey of Rockdale, and Jack Tumlinson and John A. Smith of Cameron. Alternates are Carlos Fritz of Rockdale, and Mrs. Jack Tumlinson, Mrs. John A. Smith and Lloyd Albertson of Cameron.

The four other resolutions passed during the meeting included one that commended President Nixon for his efforts to improve the nation's economy with his domestic policies. The third resolution urged efforts to build up the Republican Party both in Milam County and in the state to make Texas into a two party state.

The fourth resolution opposed busing of school children. And the fifth condemned demonstrations and other acts of violence that caused destruction of personal or public property and injury to individuals.

Austin Artist To Exhibit Oils At Folk Fete

Florence Allamon, well-known Austin artist, will be one of the exhibitors at this year's Folk Fete, set for June 9-10.

A native of Salado, she began painting in 1962 and attended classes of several well-known Austin art instructors. Her pictures have hung in many prominent exhibits and are in private collections in most of the United States as well as Old Mexico and Germany.

She is a member of the Town Lake Art Club of Austin, and paints primarily with oil. Her subjects are Texas landscapes and historical subjects and are painted on location.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

At least 75 people have bought stock in Folk Fete, Inc. Total amount of stock so far is $1,600, according to William Kelm, chairman of the membership drive.

The total will show an increase, as there are several more prospective stock owners to be contacted, Kelm said.

Summer Plan Studied For Special Children

Cameron is one of five cities chosen by the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation for participation in Operation SHARP-- Sports, Health And Recreation Program.

The program will start next month and provide recreation and a full summer of fun and learning for special children in the area.

Personnel from the Austin Department were in Cameron Monday to discuss the program with county, city, and school officials.

A full time director will be hired to supervise the program along with two aides. The program will also use a number of volunteers including high school students.

Plans call for a variety of sports, including swimming, baseball, other ball, and arts and crafts. The program would start at 8:30 a.m. and end at 4 each day. Cooperation of city officials was requested for use of city facilities including Ledbetter Park. The program would also utilize school playground facilities.

The program will start June 19 and run for 8 weeks. One of the highlights will be a camping trip to Leander for the children.

Parents of eligible children will be contacted and invited to enroll their children in the program.

Any students who wish to volunteer to help with SHARP are asked to contact Mrs. Bess Jeter at The Cameron Herald.

New Operator Drills Wildcat

Milam County gained a new wildcat last week when George H. Coates, a San Antonio operator, scheduled a shallow test which will be drilled about two miles northeast of Rockdale.

Coates' wildcat will be his No. 1 Rice Unit. It is located on the 166 acre Jim Rice lease, with drillsite on a 40 acre unit which includes over 22 acres of the Rice acreage and 8 acres owned by T. H. Cooper and Mildred Arnold. The lease is located in William Santleburg Survey.

Permit depth is 2,500 feet.

Coates, a well known independent with headquarters in San Antonio, is a new operator in Milam County. His No. 1 Rice Unit is located in an area where there has been no drilling in recent years. Nearest production is some distance to the west in the old Minerva - Rockdale shallow field.

Breakin Reported At Royal Seating

Cameron police are still investigating a breakin and burglary at the Royal Seating Corporation plant in Cameron Industrial Park. The burglary occurred early Saturday morning.

The thieves entered the building by removing a wall panel, according to Police Chief Felipe Martinez.

About $4200 worth of office equipment was stolen, including a calculator, typewriters, IBM machine, dictating machine, and a radio and speakers.

All the stolen equipment was recovered when police found it stashed across the road from the plant near the railroad track.

This was the second breakin at Royal Seating in two months.

No arrests have been made in the thefts.

DemosNameConventionDelegates

Operating under the new and complex Democratic Party rules, the Milam County Democrats held their County Convention Saturday, May 13, in the Milam County Courthouse. The convention nominated ten delegates for the State Democratic Convention to be held in San Antonio June 13.

State Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale was elected to head the delegation which includes for the first time a minimum of 34 percent women and minority representation. Other delegates elected to represent the Milam County Democratic Party are G. R. Varner of Gause, Mrs. Rufus Graves of Route 1, Buckholts, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Vogelsang of Cameron, and J. T. Talley, Sharon Hodges, Craig Magee, Laura Petty and Grace Curtis, all of Rockdale.

Alternates elected are Mrs. Bill J. Eanes, Charles Crawford and Lawrence Zotz of Cameron, H. D. Maxwell, Bill Tomlin, Randall Luckey, David Kubiak, Donald Shuffield, Mabel Simank and Peggy Hosek of Rockdale.

Four of the delegates are pledged to former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, three to Alabama Governor George Wallace and three will go to the State Convention uninstructed. Included in the delegates and alternates are eight women, two 18-to-21-year-old voters and a representative from a minority group.

Milam County Democratic Chairman Roy Law called the convention to order and appointed the following to serve on the Credentials Committee: G. R. Varner, chairman; Jim Currey, Craig Magee, Jerry Whiteside, Sharon Hodges, John Sonntag, Marcel Walker and D. M. Phillips. This committee certified the delegates present.

Kubiak was elected permanent chairman and Grace Curtis was elected permanent secretary of the convention. Caucases were held under the names of presidential candidates polling 20 percent or more of delegates present and in an uninstructed group.

No resolutions were introduced, but a committee was appointed to study the feasibility of having Democratic Party cards issued to Milam County Democratic Party members. This would serve several purposes including a means of raising funds for the party and having an office in the county to unify the party in all areas.

The county delegation representatives were similar to those elected around the state. San Antonio should be an exciting place when the Texas delegates are elected to the National Convention to be held in Miami Beach July 10. The Milam County convention lasted a record one hour and 50 minutes, but a hotly contested convention in Dallas lasted eight hours and one in Austin nine hours. A large number of night conventions ran into the wee hours of Sunday morning.

The new system which is designed to reflect the presidential preferences of the party members replaces the old "winner take all" system which had dominated the Democratic Party for years.

Bloodmobile Collects 96 Units

The Red Cross Bloodmobile collected 96 units of blood at its visit to Cameron last week. Sister Aloysius, blood program chairman, said 108 prospective donors showed up.

Of that number, 17 were first-time donors, nine were rejected for medical reasons, and three were unsuccessful.

The first-time donors answered a call to give blood for an out-of-town resident who is a native of Cameron and underwent surgery in Austin.

By Any Means...

George Wallace is probably paralyzed. He was shot four times in an assassination attempt.

Robert Kennedy is dead. Martin Luther King is dead. John Kennedy is dead.

The American people better think about that.

Important in life, ideologies don't stop bullets. And when enough political leaders, of right, or left, of center, are shot down, weakened leadership remains if anybody is left with courage to speak his mind.

Public men must speak. When their voices are stilled or intimidated, the public will not be served. The public will be subjected to anarchy. And the public is everybody.

This is another isolated incident, most likely. But the isolated incidents seem closer together.

To paraphrase Lincoln: "We don't raise ourselves by pulling other men down."

By shooting or any other means.

An Iota...

Your Herald knows no better reason to try for unity than the events of last Monday afternoon. It was all too familiar.

Men of courage, but of widely different view are targets of senselessness.

They, of course, realize anything can happen, from the moment they rise in morning until they lay down at night. Just like the rest.

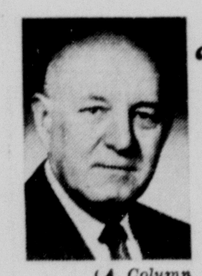
Leadership, even in men, is symbolic, whether in front of great numbers or in isolated endeavor.

And it would seem that political leaders, living symbols of ideas and causes, are the popular targets when meaning plays out in institutions undergoing great change.

The alternative to unity these days is a distant alternative. And no reasonable men like to contemplate it.

We can "cop out", but that solution is no solution at all. We can isolate, and that is no solution. We can try again and let things take a more normal course.

We can never give up, and we can try to change a mood in this country which is intolerant enough once in a while to alter events without this nation's political process having an iota of influence.



"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

IRKED PUBLISHER, IRATE SENATOR FEUD

SENATOR WILLIAM PROXMIRE (Wis.) ". . . Mr. William Loeb, the publisher of the Manchester (N.H.) Union Leader, responded last week to a letter I wrote him calling his attention to the transcript of a hearing before the Joint Economic Committee, in which Admiral Kidd, the chief of naval procurement testified on some very serious charges of waste in the Navy. . . This is the Loeb letter, dated April 10:

'Dear Senator Proxmire: If you would spend more time lifting the military budget instead of your face, maybe we would be better off. Thank you for your letter of April 4. You seem to think you are making points with some groups in the United States by your constant harassment of the military. Of course, any realist is well aware that waging war is expensive, but until we find a better way to defend ourselves from being conquered by our enemies, we have to depend upon the military. I think that what you are doing is a great disservice to the United States and so wish you would stop it, or I wish the voters in Wisconsin would retire you.'

"Mr. Loeb replied to my letter with a personal attack on me that is of no importance except that it indicates a blind spot that is weakening this country and that prevents men of influence like Mr. Loeb from having the kind of very useful effect they could have and should have in giving us a better and stronger military force.

"Mr. Loeb, like all of us, has good and bad characteristics. He obviously loves this country deeply. He is a shrewd, clever man who has the great advantage of speaking bluntly, plainly and with a real ring of conviction. And he owns a newspaper. . .

"Mr. Loeb is the kind of alley fighter who will never throw a clean knockout punch to the chin when he can hammer half as effective a blow below the belt. . .

"Are those of us who have criticized waste really hurting this country's defense? In addition to the incredible waste on the C-5A just consider the litany of billions of dollars tossed away on one turkey after another: the Mark 48 torpedo. . .an F-14 fighter plane costing an incredible $15 million per copy and you cannot find a Navy pilot who would touch it in a dogfight against a Russian Mig that cost less than $1 million. . .

"Somehow, I hope we can get through the heads of the William Loebs of this country that this Senator is not criticizing our military primarily because of the cost and waste of our money in military hardware. I am criticizing it because after spending billions and billions, the weapons do not work. . ."

CRUMP'S COMMENT

It was a piece in publisher Loeb's daily newspaper that reduced Sen. Muskie to tears while he was campaigning in the New Hampshire Primary.

POVERTY

In 1970, 1 out of every 3 families headed by a woman lived in poverty, compared to 1 out of every 4 families headed by a man. The poverty rate was highest among Negro families headed by a woman -- 54 percent, more than double the 25 percent for white families headed by a woman. Proportions for male - headed Negro and white families were 18 and 6 percent, respectively.

Gulf Estuarines Subject Of Three-Year Study

By Edna Atkinson

OCEAN SPRINGS, Miss. For the first time in history, man now has a comprehensive collection of facts about the Gulf of Mexico estuarines that will help answer a vast array of ecological questions.

The virtual "ocean" of data took researchers three years to collect.

They studied the waters, and what's on the bottoms; they inventoried the fauna and flora of the "inner spaces" and their relationships.

The "Cooperative Gulf of Mexico Estuarine Inventory and Study, Mississippi" will be published in June at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory here.

The coded data with similar reports from the other contiguous Gulf states -- Texas, Louisiana, Alabama and Florida -- will be sent to the National Oceanographic Data Center for computer center archiving.

The reports come at a significant time--when man asks how he helps or harms his environment.

For example, "the fertile fisheries crescent" offshore Mississippi is the world's second most productive fisheries area. Only similar marine nurseries offshore India exceed it in fish and crustacean production.

How are such storehouses of nature affected by dredging, dams, fishing, construction and pollution?

J. Y. Christmas, marine biologist, director of the Mississippi sound project, says that these "multiple - use demands for estuaries are very great. Their management must be based on a very detailed knowledge of the whole system."

Christmas, author of the study, is principal investigator for fisheries research and development at the research laboratory.

"This study means that, in future, there may be a factual, sound basis, instead of an emotional approach to solving Gulf Coast environmental problems," he said.

To collect the "very detailed knowledge" the scientist and staff probed all Mississippi sound estauries. Their research included description, hydrology sedimentology and biology. Estuaries are sometimes described as buffer zones in which salt- and fresh-water mingle. Tributary rivers, marshes, islands, tidal action, the seasons, and, even the time of day affect them.

They make up a distinct "eco-system."

The project included waters between the barrier islands offshore Mississippi and the upper limits of salt-water intrusion.

The scientists set up 50 stations and took monthly samples.

The hydrology (water) study involved measuring water temperature, salinity, amount of dissolved oxygen, and other factors, from surface to the bottom, at selected spots.

Sediment samples were obtained by shallow core drills and by grab-samples from the bottoms.

Botanists studied plants, marsh grasses and seagrass beds.

"The biology study was far more than a nose count of marine animals," Christmas said.

Each ecological detail was coded to a standard format and stored in the laboratory computer.

The computer assimilates data, and related ecological factors, to "tell" their story.

For example, a certain combination of data lets the computer disclose where the greatest shrimp catch can be made--or--none. Shrimp, menhaden, bottomfish, oysters and crabs make up most of mississippi's seafood industry.

All thse species require a satisfactory estuarine environment for successfully completing their life history.

Ripping up of seagrasses by dredging can destroy, or displace a species. Also, improper disposal of the spoil from dredging can change flow patterns and destroy productive areas.

On the other hand, the correct disposal of spoil might enhance productivity in an area.

Channel dredging is one illustration of estuarine alteration. The building of dams, the increased use of fresh water, both result in reduced flow to the Gulf estuaries.

Provisions for waterborne commerce and recreational facilities alter interchange patterns in estuaries. Flood control and hurricane protection modify existing conditions.

The list could go on.

Now the facts about the Mexican Gulf estuaries are available to engineers, environmentalists, marine commissions, waterfront industries, and the public.

With these facts they can decide whether contemplated projects would help or harm the Mexican Gulf environment.

"The whole purpose of our research is to make available information on which to make decisions," Christmas said.

Moose Dine On Alaska Gardens

By Betzi Woodman
Reuter Correspondent

ANCHORAGE

Some of man's ways are appreciated by moose.

Regrowth of cut timber affords good browsing, and gardens are delectable dining places. The huge creatures also like snow-plowed roads, especially when show is very deep in the mountain foothills or when spring thaw forms a crus on the snow which cuts painfully on moose legs when they walk through it.

The Alaska Railroad is a favorite thoroughfare for the animals who are not daunted by horns, wavering whistles, flashing lights or other devices which attempt to shoo the animals out of the way.

The old - fashioned cowcatcher on the locomotive has in this northland become a moose-catcher.

The moose also seem to feel they have rights in the cities and a mother with her twin calves is a common sight in surburban streets. This occurrence is generally a pleasure for those inside looking out and not having to fear the vicious hooves of a mother moose who might think her children threatened.

But gardeners wring their hands at their inability to persuade the creatures to move on and stop nibbling on trees and bushes. Mann Leiser, greenhouse and nursery owner says the moose are eating them out of house and home.

Most of their outdoor nursery stock is mutilated or destroyed by the moose. which each require 40 to 50 pounds of greenery a day. Homeowners fear for their flowering crab, mountain ash and other plants which are just tasty dishers to the moose.

Leiser's efforts to drive them away include the use of Roman candles (fireworks) and 12 - gauge explosive shells -- all to no avail.

"These moose. . . .they move to a safe distance and turn around to watch the show -- or come back after dark for dessert."

"We investigated a fence, but an eight-foot chain link fence wasn't guaranteed to keep them out and they could just come in the front drive anyway."

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

It's hard for me to figure out, but as I understand it a new problem has arisen in this country which a lot of people haven't noticed because when you've got as many problems as we've got a new one has to wait its turn to get recognized. We're probably two or three hundred behind now, backed up all the way from Cameron to Washington and points east.

The new problem is, where to hold a national political convention. Nobody seems to want one.

It's a fact. The Republicans first decided on San Diego but were frozen out and then had to change to Miami Beach, and when they did the Mayor, Police Chief, and the people of San Diego generally cheered happily, as though a tornado which had been sighted coming their way had suddenly veered in another direction.

On the other hand, when Miami Beach was chosen, no less an organization than the city's Chamber of Commerce itself opposed it, along with the police department. "We've already got the Democratic Convention and one's enough," they said. Who wants measles on top of the mumps?

This is strange indeed. It used to be that a national political convention was like a circus -- everybody was in favor of its coming to town with the exception maybe of the picture show owner and the street cleaning department.

But now, well I'll tell you, when a Chamber of Commerce doesn't want a national political convention with its accompanying publicity, thousands of visitors and millions of dollars to show up in its town, there may be a trend developing that gives the problem a higher priority on the waiting list than we'd figured.

Have you ever stopped to think what'd happen if the Chamber of Commerce in Washington suddenly decided having the national capitol there was bad for business?

What'd happen if Austin got wind of the trend and decided it didn't want the state capitol either?

Coming on down, what'd happen if . . . . whoa, I won't go any further as this might get too close to home.

Anyway, you see what an unsettling thing it'd be if nobody wanted any politicians settling down in their town, temporarily or permanently. What would we do with them?

I never thought it'd happen, but it looks like it's time for the Un-American Activities Committee to start investigating Chambers of Commerce. Something's wrong somewhere.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

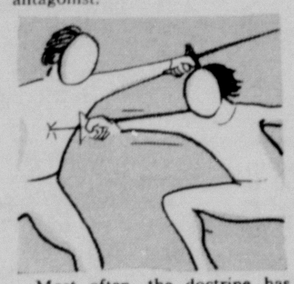
Play At Your Own Risk

Eddie and the corner grocer were boon companions. Often, when business was slow, the two men would engage in friendly scuffling around the store. One day, the grocer shoved Eddie a little too vigorously. Eddie lost his footing, fell against the counter, and cracked two ribs.

That ended their friendship. In short order, Eddie sued the grocer for damages on grounds of assault and battery. But a court turned him down, saying his claim was barred by the doctrine of "assumption or risk."

This doctrine has wide application in all kinds of playful and recreational activities.

"One who takes part in a sport," said one court, "accepts the dangers that are obvious and necessary, just as a fencer accepts the risk of a thrust by his antagonist."



Most often, the doctrine has been applied in golf. Thus:

A golfer shanked an iron shot, and his ball struck another player standing far to the right. Admittedly, he had not yelled "Fore!" before taking his swing. Nevertheless, he could not fairly have foreseen danger to anyone so far out of range.

Result: a court ruled that the victim should not collect damages. The court said this was the kind of risk he had assumed by going onto a golf course in the first place.

But the doctrine does not apply to risks that are not "natural" to the sport—that are due instead of somebody's misconduct.

In another case two fishermen were sitting in a rowboat when one, trying to make a backward cast, hooked his companion in the cheek. Sued later for damages, he sought refuge in the doctrine of assumption of risk.

"Accidents," he said, "will happen."

But the court said accidents like this will not happen if fishermen are reasonably careful with their hooks. The victim had not assumed a risk, said the court, that was preventable by plain common sense.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Bertram S. Brown, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

Middle-Aged Males

Much has been written about the middle-aged woman. Her plastic surgery, cosmetics, diets, sex life, and hormones are widely discussed. Medicine and medical research pay her a great deal of attention.

Middle-aged men, by comparison, are rather shadowy figures, neglected and somewhat forlorn.

But now, the National Institute of Mental Health, Health Services and Mental Health Administration, is supporting a Yale University study designed to throw light on the male mid-life decade.

At Yale, Dr. Daniel J. Levinson, Professor of Psychology, is studying the American male between the ages of 35-45, the decade Dr. Levinson regards as the turning point of a man's life, the transition from early adulthood to middle age.

During this decade, according to the scientist, a man usually reaches the culmination of his youthful aspirations, both in his career and in his personal life. It is also the period when a man faces many new crises.

"A man at 40 may feel trapped and impotent," says Dr. Levinson, "both at work, where his skills have become obsolescent and where he feels crushed under the weight of a bureaucratic machinery, and at home, where his wife makes unwelcome demands and his adolescent children question his values and his paternal authority. On the other hand, he may find in one domain the sustenance and strength to deal with the problems of the other."

In the study, the researcher is investigating a man's changing roles as a husband and father, as a son, in his career, and in his community. He expects to find such things as a man's social class, race, and type of occupation influence the nature of the changes that the middle-aged male undergoes.

The research team began by interviewing men from the ranks of blue collar workers, business executives, biologists, and writers. Data from these interviews are being analyzed as will data from future interviews not only with the men, but also with their wives.

The project is among other needed studies to provide information on gap areas in our knowledge of what happens to people's mental health and to shed light on factors which may help in the prevention or treatment of mental illness.

Grain Sorghum Prospects Good

By Bill McCutchen

Recent rains throughout the county have been excellent and grain sorghum crop prospects are the best in recent years. Another good rain in a couple of weeks should result in a fine grain sorghum crop.

In addition to supplying needed moisture, the recent rainfall almost completely eradicated the corn leaf aphid and greenbug populations sapping the plants.

COTTON FARMERS BUSY

Cotton farmers have been putting in long hours this week. Inclement weather has kept them sidelined for a couple of weeks while thrip populations have been increasing; and control measures are being applied at present.

Temik, a new systemic insecticide, has some farmers singing its praises and others less pleased. James Tucker of Cameron is one that is liking the way it is working on his crop. Temik has done an excellent job on thrips to this date on the Tucker farm. Fleahopper and overwintered bollweevil control is yet to be seen.

James used Temik at the recommended 10 pound rate and used seven pounds of Di-syston granules next to it as a check. At this point Temik has the contest won hands down.

James was spraying his Di-syston treated cotton Monday with Cygon for thrip control.

Overwintered boll weevils are emerging in the county and some heavy populations have been noted near prime overwintering sites.

Hugo Aigner of the Ben Arnold Community reported extensive cutworm damage to about 10 acres of cotton and said it would be necessary to replant.

BRUCELLOSIS

Skip Nobles, Texas Animal Health Commission representative, presently assigned to Milam County recently estimated that some 800 of the 2,000 head of cattle needed for recertification had been tested. Nobles said, "that most of the herds tested thus far had been small herds and this had made the going slower than expected.

September is the deadline for retesting in the county. If you will test your cattle you may leave word at the County Extension office.

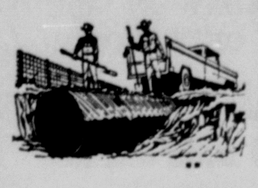
CASEBEARER CONTROL

Recent rains and cool weather have slowed egg laying and development of the pecan nut casebearer and have extended the spray dates for this area. If you didn't get your trees sprayed last week good control is expected with applications through May 20th.

CONTROL REMINDERS

We have some excellent postemergence herbicides for use in cotton as soon as the cotton is 3 inches tall. MSMA plus surfactant, DSMA plus surfactant, MSMA plus fluometuron (Cotoran Plus), and MSMA plus surfactant plus norea (Herban 62) are materials approved for use at the 3 inch stage.

CORRUGATED STEEL DRAINAGE PIPE



It's Strong & Easy to Install. Uses include road culverts, ditch crossovers, stock water supply lines, and driveways. Durable zinc-coated corrugated steel pipe is available in diameters 6 to 120 inches. Shipment can be made 1 to 3 days notice.

Union Can't Intimidate Farm Bureau, Exec Says

WACO

Texas Farm Bureau President J. T. (Red) Woodson said May 9 that efforts by leaders of the United Farm Workers National Union to intimidate Farm Bureau will not be successful.

The state farm leader revealed that UFW Union demonstrators appeared Tuesday at several county Farm Bureau offices in an apparent effort at harrassment.

Woodson said that three leaders of the UFW Union recently called at the offices of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Park Ridge, Ill., -- a suburb of Chicago-- to protest Farm Bureau's legislative activities in the farm labor field.

"The Union leaders told AFBF President William Kuhfuss that unless Farm Bureau withdrew its efforts by May 8 to get federal and state farm labor legislation enacted, the UFW national boycott apparatus would be mobilized in a massive 'informational' campaign against Farm Bureau in 40 cities," Woodson said.

Kuhfuss responded by saying that Farm Bureau would intensify its efforts "to get fair and constructive farm labor legislation that would protect the constitutional rights of workers to organize freely and farmers to be protected against the ravages of coercive boycotts that force them to sign over the work force or go out of business."

Woodson said that Farm Bureau favors legislation pending in Congress which would uphold the right of farm workers to bargain collectively.

The leader of the 127,000-member state farm organization said the farm labor legislation which Farm Bureau supports in Congress provides for:

1. Guarantee of secret ballot elections for farm organization said the farm workers on the question of which -- if any -- union they wish to represent them.

2. Prohibition of the secondary boycott in agriculture as it is presently prohibited in industry under the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act.

3. Protection against the strike at harvest time by specifying a reasonable period of notification before a strike, and by setting guidelines for fair arbitration of disputes.

4. Creation of an Agricultural Labor Relations Board to administer the Act.

"It is puzzling to us how anyone purporting to represent farm workers in a union could object to a secret ballot for farm workers," Woodson said. "It must be based on the fact that in the only such election held in California, the farm workers themselves turned down the Chavez union."

Woodson said the American Farm Bureau has produced a 30-minute documentary film which purports to show that farm workers in California do not support Chavez. The film consists primarily of interviews with farm workers who were forced into the union when growers capitulated because of the secondary boycott and signed with the union.

"This film must be getting under the skin of the union organizers. Woodson said. "We believe this is one reason for the effort to intimidate us. It is significant that the workers interviewed--who have a lot to lose by appearing in the film--say that Chavez could not win a secret ballot election."

FFA Boys Win Area Awards

Richard Vaculin passed his American Farmer Degree requirements. This award is given to the 1/2 percent of the 54,000 members of Future Farmers of America. Richard will be presented this award in Kansas City in November by the National Association.

The successful Lone Star Farmers were Lawrence Bauer, Ricky Reinders, Bil Vogelsang, David Tucker, Jamie Odom, Ned McElwrath, Albert Patzke and Jim Titsworth.

Jim was the Star Lone Star Farmer of Area III. The Lone Star Farmer Degree is the highest award given by the state association of the FFA.

In order to achieve this award, a member has to complete two years of vocational agriculture and currently be enrolled in Vo-Ag.

Gary Fuchs won the Home Improvement Award. This is achieved by accomplishing outstanding achievements in the improvement of the home.

The other applicants attending were Jimmy Vaculin for Home Electrification; Donnie Tucker for grain elevator employee, Charles Vansa for agricultural machinery partsman; and Albert Patzke for soil, water and air management.

The members were accompanied by C. Titsworth and Johnnie Reeves.

Pesticide Safety Urged

COLLEGE STATION

Spring has come and with it come man's pests--insects, weeds, rodents and plant diseases. And, farmers, ranchers and homeowners are once again calling on pesticides to eliminate these problems.

"Pesticide use increases drastically in the spring," notes Dr. Jack Price, leader in agricultural chemicals with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "And, since all pesticides are poisonous, extreme caution in their use is essential."

Improper pesticide use may cause more trouble than the toxic nature of the pesticide itself, explains the Texas A&M University specialist. Observing some simple rules can minimize the hazards involved.

"Always read the label completely, even the small print, before beginning and follow the directions for mixing and using the pesticide. If the information on the lable includes specific recommendations for safety equipment such as a respirator, by all means use it," emphasizes Price.

He suggests wearing clean, long sleeved clothes. If pesticides are being used for extended periods of time, such as several days, a shower and a change of clothes at the end of each work day are important. Clothing should be laundered after each day's use.

"Always change and bathe if pesticides are spilled on the skin or clothing," recommends the specialist. "Studies have shown that you must wash the affected area immediately in order to minimize the chance of poisoning."

According to Price some pesticides are absorbed through the skin more readily while others readily penetrate certain skin areas. Of the exposed skin areas, the forehead offers the easiest point for pesticide penetration. However, any area may be penetrated enough to result in poisoning. So, avoiding contact or washing immediately after the skin has been exposed to pesticides can not be overemphasized, says the specialist.

"Pesticides used on crops and livestock should not be used in or around the home," cautions Price. "Also, never eat, drink or smoke when handling or using pesticides."

After a field or area has been treated, re-enter it only after the danger of poisoning has been reduced. Contact with treated plants, surfaces or application equipment can be hazardous, adds Price.

Hog Cholera Still On The Loose

COLLEGE STATION

Hog cholera is still on the loose in Texas, and unless farmers and others use certain precautions, the situation could get much worse, says Dr. James Armstrong, veterinarian with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The most recent case of hog cholera has come up in Nueces County. That county was placed under a state quarantine. They are all in South Texas and include Cameron, Hidalgo, Starr, Webb and Willacy.

Three counties recently released from quarantine were Fayette, Gonzales and Lavaca.

"There is one major point regarding the hog cholera quarantine that relates particularly to those buying hogs," points out the Texas A&M University veterinarian. "This is that any hogs bought in a quarantined area are confined to the buyer's premise for a period fo 30 days. The animals cannot be resold or moved for that 30-day period unless they are shipped directly to slaughter."

Armstrong emphasizes that the purpose of the quarantine is to limit the movement of hogs. Then, if sick animals are detected, animal health officials can be notified and the animals can be properly disposed of. "This is the only way Texas will be able to move toward 'hog cholera free' status," he contends.

Credit Card Insurance No Longer Necessary

Hang on to that credit card!

"A few years ago credit card insurance to protect against losing your cards and then having someone run up a large bill was really an important part of any insurance program," said Mrs. Doris Myers, home management specialist with the Texas Agircultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University.

The companies selling this type of insurance did very well in the early years of the credit card boom, until a new credit card regulation went into effect to protect the card holder.

"To begin with," the specialist explained, "since January 24, 1972, for all credit cards no matter when issued -- a cardholder is liable for unauthorized use only if the card issued has provided a method by which the user of the card can be identified as the person authorized to use it."

This means the card must have some means of identification such as the signature, photograph or fingerprint of the legitimate owner.

Secondly, the card must have been accepted. (That is, the card must have been applied for, received or used before unsolicited cards were banned.) There's a ceiling of $50 liability on charges made with a lost or stolen card. That liability exists only if the card issuer has furnished a self-addressed, postpaid envelope or card for notification of loss or theft. The unauthorized use of the card must occur before the cardholder has notified the issuer of the loss or theft.

The stipulation on some cards that "the holder agrees to pay for all purchases made by any user of this card until the company has received notice of theft or loss" is now illegal.

Some companies estimate that they'll come out ahead if they don't notify cardholders of the $50 liability or furnish the postpaid mailer. They've decided to take their chances that the card will be found or taken care of.

"At any rate, unless you have several credit cards which haven't met all the requirements of your liability of $50, you don't need insurance for protection," Mrs. Myers advised. "It's wise to check up on your potential liability to see if you do need this protection."

You want to borrow money to finance a new car or for some other family or household reason. What are your legal rights in relation to the one who lends you the money?

This area of the law has been significantly affected by Congress' passage of the Federal Truth-in-Lending Act of 1969.

The effect of this relatively new law, which applies to items of personal property, services purchased for household uses, personal loans and many real estate transactions, is simply to require truthful and full disclosure of credit terms to you, the borrower. Lenders must now furnish the debtor with a detailed written disclosure of credit terms before credit is extended.

Included in the items which must be revealed to the borrower are the amount of credit, total amount to be financed, dollar amount of the finance charge, finance charge expressed as an annual percentage rate, the number, amount, and due rates of payments, and default charges.

The finance charge includes the amount of the insurance premiums, service or carrying charges, investigation fees, interest, and other costs. This charge then is what the customer pays for the privilege of obtaining and using his credit.

Why have a Truth-in-Lending law? The theory is that if all of these charges are specifically set forth by the lender, a person can shop and compare the costs of borrowing from various lending institutions. This works to his distinct advantage since most of us are interested in saving money even though willing to pay the cost of obtaining credit.

The Truth-in-Lending Act should prove beneficial to the borrowing member of the consuming public. By requiring the lender to disclose conspicuously and clearly the credit terms and charges, the informed consumer is better able to protect his pocketbook.

Mack Trucks Are Recalled

AUSTIN

Texas Assistant Attorney General, Robert E. Owen, Chief of the Consumer Protection Division, said today he had been requested to assist in a campaign to locate owners of certain potentially hazardous vehicles and to speed up a truck recall campaign.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration advised immediate replacement of an aluminum spring "cap" in certain Mack truck models. The NHTSA said that cracks leading to breakage of the aluminum "cap" could allow the truck springs to separate from the axle causing loss of control of the truck.

The federal authorities advised immediate inspection for cracks near the bolt holes in these caps in all Mack truck models B, C, G, H, F, MB, R, and U from the 1956 models through and including the 1969 models equipped with an SWDL 56 Series bogie axle.

Owen said he had been advised that approximately 27,000 Mack trucks could be involved in the recall campaign and that a roximately 83 spring ca, have been replaced for alleged defects since 1963.

Owen pointed out there are probably several thousand used truck owners who have never received the recall notices because so many of the trucks are in the hands of third and fourth owners. The manufacturer may have no way to trace the ownership of the truck and notify the present owner, he stated.

New SaltwaterPlayground Joins National Seashores

By Edna Atkinson
Reuter Correspondent

OCEAN SPRINGS, Mass.

A new saltwater playground will join the small roster of national seashores with the development as a park of several islands in the Gulf of Mexico.

Dedication ceremonies for the newest federal park, the Gulf Islands National Seashore, were held recently at Magnolia State Park, which was donated to the federal government by Mississippi and will be headquarters for the offshore recreation areas bordering Mississippi and Florida.

Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton, who dedicated the project, said in reference to the islands, "In their natural state, white sand beaches, coves, fish and wildlife would be gone forever, if not preserved."

Plans call for the islands to be preserved in natural beauty to provide a new recreation area for vacationers and voyagers.

The Gulf Islands National Seashore will require five years to develop at a cost of $17,774,000. It will be the eighth seashore developed by the National Park Service during the past decade.

The seashore includes Ship, Petit Bois ("Little Woods"), and Horn Islands.

Portions of Perdido Key, Santa Rosa Islands, the Naval Live Oaks Reservation, Fort Pickens, and a tract in the Pensacola Naval Air Station -- all in, or offshore northwest Florida -- make up the rest of the 17,000 acres of the development.

Outstanding features of the Gulf islands are unique fauna and flora, wide beaches with white "sugar" sand, surf, sunshine and Gulf breezes.

The new National Seashore will have almost unlimited opportunities for outdoor recreation, including shell collecting, boating, fishing, camping, hiking, skin-diving and bird-watching.

In addition to their recreational appeal the islands provide a panorama of historic links with the American heritage.

For example, French explorer D'Iberville landed on Ship Island in 1699 and that year founded Biloxi on the mainland.

To the island in 1704 came a French vessel bringing "23 virtuous maidens under the charge of two gray nuns. the charge of two gray nuns." This was the first of many shipments of marriageable girls sent out as wives for the colonists.

Ship island gained prestige in 1814 when it served as anchorage for the British fleet in its attack upon New Orleans in closing days of the War of 1812.

President Polk, in 1847 designated it as a military reservation and work on a fort begain in 1856.

Mississippians seized the unnamed fort after the state's secession in 1861, but later abandoned it. It was named for the USS Massachusetts, a federal ship whose sailors quartered there during the Civil War.

Packing Pointers For Travelers

Clothes unpacked from a suitcase needn't look like you slept in them.

Texas Agricultural Extension Service clothing specialist Becky Dunlap claims there's a way to plack that minimizes wrinkles.

"The traveler who's carefree, fresh and unrumpled has mastered packing comfortable clothes -- both neatly and senibly," Miss Dunlap said. "Good packing begins with planning ahead."

The Texas A&M University employee suggested that you determine all the clothes and accessories needed for the climates and activities your trip will include. Visualize every outfit from head to toe, inside to outside. Also itemize the cosmetics and drugs you usually rely on.

"For a greater variety with a minimum of bulk," Miss Dunlap said, "choose a basic color scheme and garments that serve more than one purpose. Pack clothes that you enjoy wearing and that can 'take it.' Easy-care fabrics are ideal for travel. These include such materials as jerseys, no - wrinkle synthetics and blends and knits -- garments that are washable as well as packable."

Prints the camouflage spots and wrinkles are also good traveling companions.

Whether using the "roll-up" or "fold-it-flat" method, pack tightly, but without crushing clothes. Too much room allows clothes to roll and shift, thus forming unnecessary wrinkles. Pad out needed folds with crumpled tissue paper or soft garments.

"Use plastic bags for laundry, damp swimsuits, or anything you want to protect," Miss Dunlap advised. "Tissue paper and plastic bags are the tools of good packing."

Pack heavier items such as shoes and less used garments in the bottom of the suitcase. Lighter, frequently used items should be placed near the top.

"Carry cosmetics in a separate case," Miss Dunlap said. "A good method of arranging cosmetics is to pack go-togethers individually. For example, put hair setting items together and soaps and lceaning supplies in another area or package."

Plastic bottles and jars make ideal containers because of their lightweightness. Leave room at the top to allow for expansion of liquids; then seal with tape.

Miss Dunlap said not to forget the many small gadgets on the market that make life easier for the traveler. Consider such things as folding inflatable hangup miniature clotheslines and pins, sewing and repair kits, spot remover, shoe shine pads and plug-in hot cups.

"It's wise to make allowances for an unexpected separation of you and your luggage by labeling both inside and outside with your name and address," she said. "An unusual decal or strip of colored tape on the outside of your luggage will cut time spent at baggage claim areas to a minimum. The chance of someone picking up your bag by mistake will also be reduced."

Planning ahead for your travel needs will give you that extra amount of confidence as you open your luggage for the first time. When miles from home, you'll find that you did bring that oh-so-important item.

Scouting Open To Area Boys

As soon as boys complete the fifth grade this spring, they can join a Scout troop, according to Dave Boehner, organization and extension chairman of the Heart O' Texas Council, Boy Scouts of America.

There are 173 Scout troops in the Heart O' Texas Council so there should be one near the boy's home, Boehner said, or boys or parents can get information from the Scout Service Center, 300 Lake Air Drive, Waco, Phone - 772-8932.

Boehner said that most boys want to join a troop to have fun, activities, and companionship but that the Scouting program --- which will introduce some improvements next fall-- uses several unique methods to reach its objectives.

"Scouting ideals is one of the principal methods of Scouting," Boehner explained, "and the boy is asked to understand and try to live by the Scout Oath and Law. Then, Scouting uses the patrol method so that a boy learns to relate to others by working in a small group with each troop made up of several patrols.

"In Scout advancement, the boy can see his self-improvement when his accomplishments are recognized, and the program offers a chance for a boy to have outdoor experiences to develop his personal fitness. Scouting also makes extensive use of adult male association so that a boy learns about adult qualities by associating with adults," Boehner explained.

"Two other methods of Scouting are leadership development so a boy will understand the role of leadership as he is provided the opportunity to lead the personal growth which helps a boy gain maturity as he plans his own personal growth with guidance," Boehner said.

Alcoa Unveils Rolling Mill

DAVENPORT, Iowa

The world's largest rolling mill, a six-story giant capable of reducing aluminum ingots to finished plate 210 inches wide, was unveiled Tuesday at Alcoa's Davenport Works.

John D. Harper, Alcoa's board chairman and chief executive officer, said the massive mill is visible evidence of Aluminum Company of America's willingness to commit substantial recourses to develop the technology and construct the facilities necessary to build aluminum markets.

Testing of the big mill--technically described as a 220-inch, four-high hot reversing mill--was completed recently. A pair of housings, each 65 feet high and weighing approximately 650 tons, supports the mill's four vertically stacked rolls.

Each of the work rolls, between which move ingots weighing up to 40,000 pounds and more, exceeds 3.5 feet in diameter and weighs approximately 80 tons. Pressure is applied by two huge backup rolls, the largest ever cast. Each backup roll is seven feet in diameter, 43 feet long and weighs 350 tons, a record size.

Harper told newsmen visiting the plant, including a contingent from Europe, that the mill is "an achievement of international consequence". He said extra-wide aluminum plate from the mill already has started to play an important role in the worldwide growth of markets such as the liquefied natural gas industry.

Alcoa's chairman said the aerosapce, marine, trucking and railroad industries also represent potential markets for extra-wide and long aluminum plate. Large coils of aluminum sheet are another economically attractive produce made possible by the new mill, he noted.

Special Gift

You could pass the tree a hundred times without seeing the bright little bird peeping out.

Nature neglected to give man such camouflage. In the scheme of things he is actually quite obvious. But God created man in His image —a much greater asset. He was given a strong body and a mind with which to think. And He has given us a very special gift; the miracle of Faith.

Yes, Faith is a gift. It comes only through our seeking, and the quest is not an easy one. Strangely enough, you might not find Faith in church. But there you will discover where to begin to look for it.

"On this graveyard we shall build our golden Bangladesh."

A dream needs help.

Millions of Bengali children have a dream. But a dream needs medicine, good water and a roof over it. A dream needs food, blankets and money. $1 sent to the United Nations Children's Fund brings high protein foods to three infants for three months. $2 buys a blanket. A dream needs money if it's going to be more than a dream.

If you can't manage now, how are you going to manage later?

Money's tight. You feel pretty lucky if you can stretch your paycheck enough to meet all the everyday expenses. It's harder than ever to save a buck. And how are you going to take care of the future, when you've got enough trouble just taking care of the present?

But, you can manage to save—by joining the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's a sure way to get started on a nest egg that you can depend on in the future.

The amount you designate will be automatically set aside from your paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds, before you get your check, and before you can spend it.

So, join the Payroll Savings Plan and start on your "secret stash" today. And then just relax and don't worry about tomorrow. You'll manage.

Now E Bonds pay 5½% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Horseradish Gives Popular Pot-Roast Added Flavor Punch

Spring demands a fresh approach to food as well as fashion. No need to discard a family favorite; simply add new flavor to style it for the sprightly season.

A basic beef pot-roast can be brightened for spring with the flavor zip of prepared horseradish, points out Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Tomato juice and onion also prove their flavor compatibility in this easy recipe that braises a beef blade pot-roast to fork tenderness for a satisfying meal.

Horseradish Beef Pot-Roast

- 3 to 4-pound beef blade pot-roast
- 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ cup tomato juice
- ¼ cup prepared horseradish
- ½ cup chopped onion
- Water or tomato juice
- 2 tablespoons flour

Brown pot-roast in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add salt and pepper to pot-roast. Add ¼ cup tomato juice, horseradish and onion. Cover tightly and cook slowly 2½ to 3 hours or until meat is tender. Remove pot-roast to heated platter. Add water or tomato juice to cooking liquid to make 2 cups. Thicken with flour for gravy
